

Please protect the small guy, not the special interest groups and large companies. I am a concerned Wisconsin citizen and would like to make it to the Federal government that me and my family do not want to be exposed to telemarketing from a businesses or its affiliates simply because I or my family has had contact with that business. The FCC should allow the state to determine if it would like to protect its citizens further than the federal govt does. Please allow the people of Wisconsin to determine their own laws. We have already determined that two years is an acceptable amount of time. Actually, the citizens would prefer to have no expiration. The opportunity for business to ruin my family's dinner should be minimized. Families today spend very little time together. The families of Wisconsin value this time. Just because I purchase an item from Sears should not subject me to constant phone calls and rude responses when you decline to accept the call. Stress from trying to avoid these calls does not allow for a relaxing family evening. Please, consider family values, rights to privacy, and respect the decisions already made by the citizens of Wisconsin. Thank you.
